

New releases at NYC Independent Film Festival

The Sisters Karras by Greek American filmmaker Micah Stathis

NEW YORK, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, May 8, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The NYC Independent Film Festival offers great new releases in narrative storytelling. At the 15th edition one of those central focus points is 'THE SISTERS KARRAS' by Micah Stathis.

'THE SISTERS KARRAS' is a story about the things that matter: Family, legacy, success, and textiles. Yes, textiles. They say there's nothing as important as family. But people say all sorts of things. It is also about the need to make something of yourself. Sometimes these things overlap. sometimes they are traveling in opposite directions.

You'll still love your family at the end.”

Micah Stathis, filmmaker

In this film, two estranged half-sisters form a complicated bond as they work together to retrieve their rare and precious inheritance of their father. They never really knew him. And now they have to get to know each other.

The key question of 'THE SISTERS KARRAS' is: Is family the most important thing? And if yes, how important? You'll still love your family at the end. Maybe even a little more.

Micah Stathis was born in the Midwest and raised in Greece, in Ano Glyfada just outside of Athens. He spent three years serving in the US Army, being deployed in combat in Ramadi, Iraq. He is a decorated veteran. 'THE SISTERS KARRAS' is Micah's first feature film.

'THE SISTERS KARRAS' at NYCindieFF: Thursday June 8, 2023 - at 8.15 pm - Theater 2 at the Producer's Club.
