platform for all to use. Jenn is from Cleveland, Ohio. She decided to join the company because she is excited about where the product is going.

Previously, Jenn was senior product owner for e-commerce, overseeing product development, launching various products and leading special projects. She is joining EOX Vantage with a Bachelor of Arts in English Literature from Cleveland State University and 14 years of experience. Jenn will positively impact the company by bringing clarity and focus to product development and bridging the clients' needs and company direction.
