/EINPresswire.com/ -- Sour Cream is processed through fermentation of regular cream, which is fat-rich with lactic acid. When the lactic acid bacteria are introduced into the cream, they produce the sour flavor and thick texture in the cream. Sour cream is widely used as a condiment in cuisines and as topping by the hotel & restaurant industry. In addition, sour cream is used by bakeries, confectioneries, and dairy industry as an active ingredient in many food products. The sour cream powder is dehydrated sour cream, which contains 30–60% fat. The powdered sour cream, when mixed with an appropriate quantity of water, forms into regular sour cream with the same flavors. The sour cream powder is produced by spray drying the sour cream to form a powder.

The major benefits of sour cream powder are it has longer shelf life than the traditional sour cream and can be stored in the refrigerator and air-tight containers even after opening the packet.”
