On announcing the launch of the new location for GEP, Global Enterprise Partners' founder Nicholas Tsappis said: "We are excited to see the impact this additional investment will have as we look to accelerate the growth of our business in Japan and the wider Asia Pacific region."

This is an exciting time for SThree's business in Japan and is a big step forward in achieving our goals of being the top STEM recruitment business in the country"

Christopher Reilly, Managing Director – Japan, SThree

GEP has an established business in APAC, with more than 20 clients in the region. The Tokyo office, also the firm's first in APAC, will bring its consultants closer to that client base. GEP is a division of global STEM recruitment specialist SThree, its brands Huxley, Progressive Recruitment, Real Staffing and Computer Futures also have offices in Tokyo.

Christopher Reilly, Managing Director – Japan, SThree commented: "This is an exciting time for SThree's business in Japan and is a big step forward in achieving our goals of being the top STEM recruitment business in the country.'

The launch of GEP in Tokyo solidifies SThree's commitment to placing sought-after specialists with dynamic organisations across the globe. GEP is expected to contribute significantly to the growth of SThree's Japanese business.
