Comes the Sun rock music festival scheduled for 23-24 June at Memorial Park in Payson, Utah. Last year's Payson festival was a smash hit with happy fans seeking out classic rock in a family-friendly atmosphere. In its fourth year, ULCF events have attracted more than 9,000 fans to these free events created by the musician board members of ULCF. 2023 is expected to draw big crowds as people shed masks and COVID concerns. A growing raft of sponsors support these sensational summer celebrations to maintain free entrance to fans. VIDEO

"This year's bands are going to rock the house," states Alan Breese, chairman of ULCF for 2023. "So many great musicians have volunteered to perform for FREE so fans can also attend for free. Of course, food trucks will be there to feed the masses."

Here are some of the bands who are ready to rock the park:

Cover Girls, Midlife Crisis, Bone Band, Be Kind Rewind, Paradox, Shufflin' Noah, Monkey Friday, Everett Lincoln, Tri Chevys, JT Bevy, Ruse, Sonestone, Geneva Road, Bandaged, Dark Chikin, Totem, Moe Low, DeNovo, JGMB, among others. More details HERE.

"More than 50 bands applied to play at this year's Here Comes the Sun festival in Payson," states John Pilmer, ULCF Communications Chair. "Fans can rest assured that this year's band lineup is the 'crème de la crème'."
