"We understand the importance of accurate and consistent color for our customers," Jenny Tcharnaia, President of NedGraphics, said. "The integration of Pantone color libraries and the latest X-Rite i1Pro 3 into NedGraphics is a significant milestone. With this agreement, we enable cohesive and easy-to-use color management, allowing our users to control color all the way through their design workflow, from the inspiration stage to quality control. Our upcoming release means getting desired color results through X-Rite Pantone's trusted and recognized color ecosystem with ease."

"We are excited to partner with NedGraphics on the integration of our Pantone libraries and i1Pro 3 color measurement device," Jan Keller, Vice President of OEM Sales at X-Rite Pantone, said. "We're confident that NedGraphics' customers will quickly appreciate and take advantage of these tools to expand, simplify, and diversify the use of color across the entire design process."

The agreement between NedGraphics and Pantone demonstrates a shared commitment to providing users with the highest level of quality and accuracy in their color workflow.

The upcoming NedGraphics v23 release is scheduled to launch later in 2023. As users anticipate this integration, NedGraphics extends an invitation to ITMA 2023. Taking place between June 8 and 14, ITMA 2023 will happen at the Fiera Milano Rho exhibition and trade center in Milan, Italy.

ITMA 2023 will be an exciting opportunity to network with the world's top manufacturers and industry leaders. Attendees will also meet the NedGraphics team in person and see software demonstrations.
