Young Creators and World-Renowned Artist Team up to Raise Funds for Children's Bureau of Southern California

(Los Angeles – May 12, 2023) Children's Bureau of Southern California has partnered with world-renowned artist and ambassador for global peace, Ehsan, to provide a unique auction item for the upcoming President's Invitational Golf Tournament. With the essential contributions of young Nicholas, Eileen, Guadalupe and Melody, Ehsan is proud to present "Colors of Love," a singular effort completed in a cooperative spirit.

The four children between the ages of 4 and 5, are currently enrolled in a program that is offered through Children's Bureau which provides children an opportunity to build skills in all developmental areas and prepares them to enter kindergarten. The free program serves low-income families who reside in Central and South-Central Los Angeles and provides family

The children are thriving and serve as excellent examples of the work performed by the local charity, Children's Bureau, an organization committed to building hope and providing a path forward as leaders in strengthening vulnerable children, their parents and the communities in which they live. Children's Bureau is a private nonprofit that has been saving lives with innovative child welfare programs since 1904, serving more than 49,400 children and parents annually in Los Angeles and Orange Counties.

Centered around a maternal image, "Colors of Love" provides calming peace as bright tones radiate outward, off the canvas. The painting technique utilizes textures and creates dimension throughout the piece. While Ehsan focused his energies on completing this figure, each child had an active hand in painting a section, all working together.

A spectrum of bright tones lead you to the inner circle, a pearlescent rendering of a timeless mother figure, her love for all held tightly. Just as each young artist contributed their energy and passion toward this project, so too does each powerful piece of the palette magnify those around it, presenting a positive message of unity. When the colors of love assemble as one, their strength proves unmatched.

Together we can overcome any adversity.

Together we prove resilient, time after time.

ABOUT CHILDREN'S BUREAU:□

Since 1904, Children's Bureau has been a nonprofit leader in preventing child abuse and reduce its devastating impact. Children's Bureau addresses child and family well-being through primary prevention --- an innovative, collaborative, and research-driven approach that educates and supports vulnerable parents in raising children who thrive. This includes parenting classes, support groups, in-home visits, family bonding activities, community leadership training and a preschool program. The agency operates or is part of several family resource centers and community partnerships that help parents with additional services to relieve social stressors. Children's Bureau offers mental health counseling, foster care and adoption services with additional support services for those who have adopted and relative caregivers. Children's Bureau strengthens the lives of 49,400 at-risk children and their parents annually throughout Southern California while the agency's advocacy efforts and broader community impact initiatives inspire movement in the child well-being arena on local, state and national levels.
