Robinson Bradshaw is home to a nationally recognized Sports and Entertainment Practice Group that serves a wide range of industries. The firm and its attorneys bring a great deal of value to clients by drawing on its broad-based general experience in business law and litigation, a deep knowledge from sports representations, and experience in intellectual property matters, taxes, and representations of large nonprofit entities. Several attorneys have been recognized as Outside Counsel Power Players by Sports Business Journal.

Robinson Bradshaw's work in motorsports has helped shape the legal landscape of NASCAR and the American motorsports industry, and the firm maintains one of the most extensive slates of top team owner, sponsor, organizer and driver client bases in the country.

The firm's representation of college athletic conferences, including the SEC, spans a range of legal areas, including television network agreements, media and licensing arrangements, scholarship litigation, and tournament and bowl media agreements. Robinson Bradshaw also advises major players in professional sports – including football, basketball, baseball and golf – as well as clients in the television, film and music industries.

Additionally, Robinson Bradshaw provides intellectual property counseling and litigation services related to the development, maintenance, protection and enforcement of its sports and entertainment clients' trademarks, copyrights, and publicity rights before and after death.

About Hackney Publications

Hackney Publications is the nation's leading publisher of sports law periodicals. The company was founded by journalist Holt Hackney. Hackney began his career as a sportswriter, before taking on the then-nascent sports business beat at Financial World Magazine in the late 1980s. A few years later, Hackney started writing about the law, managing five legal newsletters for LRP Publications. In 1999, he founded Hackney Publications. Today, Hackney publishes or copublishes 24 sports law periodicals, including Sports Litigation Alert, which offers a searchable archive of more than 4,000 case summaries and articles. In addition, the Alert is used in more than 100 sports law classrooms any given semester.
