I just want to give something positive and good to this world in hopes of impacting the lives of at least one child for the better”

Cedric Davis

He may be behind bars, but this remarkable entrepreneur is on a mission to educate, enlighten and empower.

Inspirational speaker, author and entrepreneur Cedric Levonne Davis has been incarcerated for the last 20 years, but he's not letting that get in the way of what he feels is his purpose in life. The creator of the Backyard Buddis brand, Davis is the author of several stories that address real-life issues that children are faced with on a daily basis, including bullying, making friends, and being offered drugs.

“My objective for writing these stories is to educate, enlighten and empower children, but I also make it fun and interesting at the same time,” says Davis.

His first published book is now available on Amazon. Learn to Spell, Read and say ABC's with the Backyard Buddis is a coloring activity book that helps children learn the alphabet, spell words using the alphabet, place words in a sentence and associate words with objects. An excellent tool to promote early learning, the book also provides a great opportunity for parents to interact with their children.

According to Davis, his Backyard Buddis characters were originally created in 2007 while he was in a lock-up cell. The brand has been so well-received, that other items such as apparel, bedding, party decor, toys and games, are planned for the future. The author is also working on publishing a series of books based on the Backyard Buddis. The first book, which will be released in the near future--Meet Mel Snell and Friends—will be followed by No Spice, and then No Bullying.

Also available on Amazon are Raise A Nation: Revolutionizing The Black Community and Breaking Da Cycle: Keeping Our Youth Alive And Out Of Prison.
