Orthodontics is defined as the branch of dentistry, for diagnosis, prevention and treatment of dental and facial irregularities and abnormalities. The orthodontics tools are used to straighten the teeth, prepare the mouth and teeth for braces, and support the brace process. Orthodontics treatment is used to close the wide gaps between the teeth, aligning the tips of the teeth, straightening crooked teeth, and to improving speech or chewing ability. Crowded, protruded, and crooked teeth along with problems associated with the bite of the teeth are treated using orthodontics.
