FLORIDA, US, May 25, 2023

/EINPresswire.com/ -- LiveKill is proud to announce the upcoming release of their first full length album, Evil Ecstasy, a follow up to their 2018 EP, Turned To Grey.

The band has been working on this album for the last 3 years, meticulously crafting 8 tracks full of relentless rhythm sections, breakneck beats, and crushing riffs.

Set to be released later in 2023, Evil Ecstasy showcases an evolution since LiveKill's debut –

John Snell, Guitarist/Producer

"We've poured our hearts and souls into every aspect of this album, through COVID times and various setbacks, the album further builds on the intensity, passion, and professionalism featured in our previous work. We're eager for everyone to hear it, and we're even more excited to see them enjoying it at the shows." – John Snell, Guitarist/Producer

Stay tuned for further updates as LiveKill enters the post-production phase, fine-tuning the album for release. Fans can expect an announcement regarding the release date, shows, and platforms where it will be available on the band's social media:
