comprehensive ball data, including speed, launch angle, spin rate, and carry distance, as well as club head data such as speed, efficiency, club path, and angle of attack. It offers golfers invaluable insights to understand their swing and make improvements. While the GC3 does not measure certain metrics such as face angle, loft and lie, impact location, or closure rate, it provides accurate feedback comparable to the GCQuad. The GC3's performance analysis software has also been improved, displaying all the measured metrics for both club and ball data, along with shot trajectory.

Foresight Sports is honoured to receive the Golf Monthly Editor's Choice for the GC3 Launch Monitor. This recognition further solidifies Foresight Sports' commitment to delivering exceptional technology and showcases their position as a leader in the golf industry.
