After decades of experience at the Sr. Vice President level in the waste management industry, Waldron was searching for an entrepreneurial business opportunity which would utilize his business talents in a fun way and meet a need within his community. The Dumpster Today business franchise system offered a familiar industry with an existing business model he could jump right into. Additionally, the technologically streamlined customer rental process and the company's great reputation for integrity-in-service, met the requirements Waldron was looking for.

“

Customers are trusting us with every order and we're committed to making getting a dumpster an easy experience.”

Built to support positive customer experiences, the rental process boasts up-to-date tech options, such as real-time texting communication for deliveries and pick-ups and easy online ordering. Waldron states that customers have access to talk to management via phone or text throughout the entire rental process. He believes this provides an excellent customer experience.

“We take pride in making it easy for our customers to clean up their property by getting a dumpster delivery, by either ordering online or just giving us a call”, says Waldron.

Waldron’s desire to serve his community with dignity is derived from his 16+ years of military service. Waldron joined the United States Marine Corps in 1996, volunteered for deployment overseas after 9-11, and recently completed a cohort with BunkerLabs, an entrepreneurship program designed specifically for post 9-11 Veterans.

With two trucks on the road, Waldron says they are able to provide same-day dumpster rentals if dumpsters are ordered before 10am and same-day swaps for contractors and homeowners with projects underway. Dumpster Today dumpsters are a customized roll-off dumpster which can fit into residential driveways and parking lot spaces comfortably. The dumpsters and delivery trucks are a bright orange color, clean, and neighborhood-friendly, meeting HOA guidelines.
