dancers, "sass" her audiences with her infectious personality, villainously hip choreography, absurdly funny props, and a visual style that leaves them psychedelic after-burn.

Sassyfras is still reeling from the success of her "Electric Rain" album, released in April 2022. Reviews have applauded Sassyfras's style and describe it as a new wave and electro-pop hybrid with heavy zydeco influence. Of note are the tracks "Zydeco Girl," which serves as her artist's statement and explains the entire "Sassyfras" philosophy. Also notable is her song, "Once a Who Dat," a near-certifiable New Orleans Saints' pregame hype track.

In her ninth year performing throughout Louisiana, she has played alongside Louis Michot's Melody Makers, 3rd generation zydeco royalty Gerard Delafonse, and has become a staple at New Orleans events such as the Freret Street Market, Bayou Yacht Club Bayou Gras, and French Quarter Fest. She even has her own Mardi Gras event, the Krewe of
