Aldora Britain Records Presents ... Berry Donmark

Founded in 2013, Aldora Britain Records serves as a worldwide hub of independent and underground music. ABR's liner notes state: "Berry Donmark's latest EP release provides a glorious insight into his songwriting mind. These three compositions are smoothly crafted and executed with a warm and charming ease. 'Rain Drenched Sparrow' opens the set, perfectly reviving the classic soft rock vibe of the 1970s. The lyrics are notable here too, an homage to Berry's Canadian heroes. 'Praying Tonight' comes next, picking up on the soulful essence of The Other Hit's work, and 'Secrets Of Mood' concludes proceedings with an orchestral flourish. This trio of musical offerings is an exceptional artistic and creative snapshot...."

Aldora Britain Records has previously released various tracks by The Other Hit (all written by Berry under his writing name Patrick Courtemanche). Donmark noted, "Aldora Britain Records and its founder Tom Hilton have been extremely supportive of my music, and I'm truly grateful.

Tom is the most voracious, knowledgeable, and open-minded curator of indie releases that I've ever encountered."

Berry Donmark's performing career began in the mid-1980s in Ann Arbor, Michigan. He started off performing original folk songs that ranged from historical storytelling to topical tunes. He appeared at various locations around the campus town, including an impromptu and infamous appearance at the legendary Mr. Flood's Party.

Following several years performing in Minneapolis cover bands in the late 1980s and early 1990s, Berry released two albums of original material - 1995's "Secrets & Lies" and 2002's "Midway Angels." Both pre-dated the prominence of digital distribution and have been lost to time (with the exception of a few scattered cassettes and burned CDs). In 2022, and credited under his writing name Patrick Courtemanche, Berry appeared on The Other Hit's release "DIEGO," featuring 10 of his original tunes. In 2023 he began releasing solo material as Berry Donmark.
