Tom Smith, president of All Year Cooling

In his interview with Influential People Magazine, Tom Smith talked about a wide variety of subjects, including what All Year Cooling specializes in and their 50 years in business, what motivated him to become an entrepreneur and business owner, and what he considers to be his greatest professional success. He also touched on some personal subjects such as where he went to school and how he ended up in Weston, Florida, as well as what some of his hobbies are.

When asked about his hiring philosophy, Tom Smith replied:

“My hiring philosophy is to hire the most honest, dependable and respectful staff possible. I look for those who are friendly and patient. It’s very important to us that we choose someone with a positive attitude because their attitude will also be reflected onto our customers. I enjoy teaching and training people the skills that they need, but certain qualities people bring in the door with them.”

As for advice he wished he had received when beginning his career Mr. Smith remarked: “I wish someone had told me that I should always do my best but to remember that there is no reason to compare myself with others because we all start at different points in life. My other advice would be to take things slowly and make sure you are ready for what you want before you go all in. It’s important not to get ahead of yourself because you might fail if you plan too much at once, so start small and work your way up!”

Tom Smith went on to discuss a wide range of topics, such as how he deals with rejection in a professional setting, what he considers his greatest success in life so far, his approach to delegation, what the future holds for All Year Cooling and what excites him about that, as well as one of the major keys to his company’s success.

When asked about a habit of his that he would recommend to other entrepreneurs, Tom Smith said, “My secret to success is having a good partner by my side. Whether it’s in business or life, one person can’t do everything so I have learned how important it is to surround myself with people who are better than me at certain things. For example, my business partner spends hours upon hours working on the financials for our company because he has a passion for numbers while I will dedicate more time to training new employees and collaborating with clients. We balance each other out perfectly and work as a team to keep ourselves motivated every day because we both know that we can’t be successful without each other.”

The interview continued with more questions about Tom Smith and his role as president of All Year Cooling. As to what sets All Year Cooling apart from its competitors, Mr. Smith said, “All Year Cooling is a family-owned and operated company that prides itself on being reliable, honest and professional. We have a combined total of 50 years in the industry and over 100 employees across South Florida. We’re also 100% dedicated to making sure our customers are satisfied. We offer free quotes and make sure that we are available on our customers’ timeline. Living in Weston, Florida and having grown up in South Florida, I also personally understand the importance of having good and reliable air conditioning, so we make sure to provide same-day installation. Our people are trained in the installation and servicing of a wide range of brands, so we are able to give our customers lots of options.”
