Seth Johnson, Associate Vice President - East

Johnson previously spent seven years in the retirement services industry building partnerships with financial advisors and investors. Johnson has significant knowledge of retirement plan designs and regulations, which made him a valuable resource to clients on the distinctions, restrictions, and key details of investment opportunities.

Angulo’s background includes serving in the mortgage industry as an advisor and trainer. She developed curriculum, trained and mentored employees, and guided clients through the loan application process. Angulo brings to Keystone notable expertise in product marketing, compliance, and strategies for ensuring a successful client experience.

“Seth and Amy understand the complexities of working in a highly regulated industry and are able to apply their knowledge and customer service expertise to the benefit of financial advisors and Keystone's direct investors. Plus, they have proven track records of building and sustaining relationships with investors across the country, which will help ensure we continue to deliver the highest level of customer support," said Mike Packman, Founder and Chief Executive Officer.

Johnson graduated from Georgia State University in Atlanta with a Bachelor of Arts degree in political science and public policy. Angulo graduated from National University in La Jolla, Calif., with a Bachelor of Science degree in accounting. She earned the Securities Industry Essentials (SIE) designation and Series 63 registration.
