Timberlands Dental Clinic Wanneroo, West Australia, is pleased to announce new informational post on dental implant costs. Timberlands Dental Clinic offers patients budget-friendly, gentle oral health care for the entire family, has released expert advice on Dental Implant Costs in Perth.

The dental clinic's advice is designed to inform patients based in Western Australia who are considering the procedure, comprehensive information on the average cost of implants, as well as some tips on reducing the cost of their treatment.

This advice is important for patients as the cost of dental implants can vary depending on the type of implant, the location of the dental practice, and the qualifications of the dental professional. However, Timberlands Dental Clinic Wanneroo notes that dental implants typically cost between $3,000 and $5,500, whereas in Western Australia, the average cost of dental implants is between $2,600-$4,000.

What are the Different Types of Implants?

The most common type of dental implant offered to patients is the endosteal implant. This type of dental implant is placed directly into the jaw bone.

The second most common type of dental implant is the subperiosteal implant, which is more expensive than endosteal implants. This type of dental implant is placed under the gum tissue but above the jaw bone.

As an experienced Dentist in Wanneroo, Timberlands Dental Clinic Wanneroo informs patients that the type of implant used and the cost will vary from person to person, depending on their specific oral health needs.

What Factors Affect the Cost of Dental Implants?

Dental implants are a popular replacement for a missing single tooth or several teeth. They are titanium posts or frames surgically placed in the jawbone beneath the gum line.

As the jaw bone heals, it grows around the metal post, anchoring it securely in place. Then, an artificial tooth is attached to the post.

The renowned Dentist Wanneroo – Timberlands Dental Clinic Wanneroo details how several factors can affect the cost of implants, including:

The Type of Dental Implant: There are different types of dental implants available on the market today. The type patients choose will affect the overall cost.

The Number of Dental Implants Needed: If patients need more than one dental implant, it will cost more than if they only need one.

The Dentist's Skill and Experience: As with any surgical procedure, the skill and experience of a patient's dentist will affect the final cost. Skilled dental surgeons charge more than those with lesser experience.

The Complexity of the Procedure: The more complex the dental implant procedure, the higher the cost will be.

The Need for Additional Procedures: If a patient's jawbone is too soft or too thin, or they need to have a damaged tooth extracted, these will add to the overall cost. Additional procedures are paid separately.

What Additional Procedures Can Increase the Cost of Dental Implants?

As an established Dentist Woodvale, Timberlands Dental Clinic Wanneroo is familiar with a wide range of dental treatments that may be required to ensure a successful dental implant procedure. These include:

Bone Grafting/Augmentation: If a patient's jawbone is too soft or thin or because they have insufficient bone density, a bone graft may be necessary to provide a solid foundation for dental implants. A bone graft procedure can add $500 – $3,000 to the cost of surgery.

Sinus Lift: A sinus lift may be necessary if a patient's upper jaw is too narrow or their sinuses are too close to their jawbone. This can add $2,000 – $4,000 to the cost of surgery.
