Pharmaceutical packaging plays a critical role in ensuring the safety, efficacy, and quality of medications. It serves as a protective barrier that safeguards medicines from external factors such as moisture, light, air, and contamination. Proper packaging not only extends the shelf life of pharmaceutical products but also helps maintain their potency and integrity. Additionally, pharmaceutical packaging includes features that aid in accurate dosage administration and provide vital information to healthcare professionals and patients. From child-resistant caps to tamper-evident seals, pharmaceutical packaging is designed to prioritize patient safety and promote adherence to medication regimens. The global pharmaceutical packaging market size accounted for $ 88,880 million in 2019, and is expected to reach $ 144,233 million by 2027, registering a CAGR of 6.1% from 2020 to 2027.
