Chief Executive Officer*

“Glenn is an exciting addition to our rapidly growing renewables business unit focused on helping our customers achieve their environmental, social, and governance goals,” said Colin Duncan, SEAM Group Chief Executive Officer. “His leadership experience with electrical vehicles infrastructure gives him an inside edge to driving innovation within the sustainability sector.”

According to Allied Market Research, the solar EV charging market is expected to generate $330.9 million by 2031, representing an 8.1% compound annual growth rate increase over the next decade.

Glenn, who is based in the Colorado Springs area, spent six years with Electrify America, most recently serving as its National Program Operations Lead for its commercial division. While there, he directed site acquisition, utility coordination, design coordination, and construction of 100+

EV 150kW and 350kW fast-charging stations encompassing six mountain states.

"I am honored to join the SEAM Group mission to advance our unwavering commitment to renewable energy solutions," Vinti said. "I look forward to leading our team in delivering world-class construction services while specifically making a positive impact in the electric vehicle and solar sectors."
