customer service, is excited to announce its strategic expansion into sheet metal fabrication. This new development allows AirPro to further diversify its comprehensive suite of services, meeting a wider range of customer needs and ensuring complete HVAC system integration for clients in Bismarck and beyond.

The decision to expand into sheet metal fitting fabrication stems from AirPro's commitment to innovation and service excellence. Recognizing the demand for custom, precision-crafted sheet metal fittings in the HVAC industry, AirPro is poised to fill this market gap with the same Five-Star Service Guarantee that defines its HVAC services.

Ian Yearsley, COO of AirPro and Serial Entrepreneur, commented on the launch, saying, "Our entry into sheet metal fitting fabrication marks a significant step forward in our service capabilities. We're leveraging our team's expertise and skills to deliver custom-fit solutions to our customers. This will further our mission to provide an all-encompassing HVAC service under one roof."

The new service offering will include custom design & fabrication of sheet metal for various HVAC applications, from residential to commercial and industrial settings. AirPro is committed to using top-quality materials and employing superior craftsmanship in all its projects, assuring longevity, functionality, and aesthetic appeal. AirPro will also be implementing an innovative and industry changing web portal for their customers to submit their orders online, further streamlining the outdated and often slow process of ordering sheet metal fittings.

This strategic move positions AirPro as a one-stop solution for all heating, cooling, and now, sheet metal fitting fabrication needs. Customers can expect the same level of service, professionalism, and the unique "Five-Star Service Guarantee or It's Absolutely Free" pledge, a testament to AirPro's dedication to superior customer satisfaction.
