The global paraffin wax market size is expected to reach USD 8.58 Billion in 2030 and register a steady revenue CAGR of 5.4% over the forecast period, according to latest analysis by Emergen Research. A steady revenue growth of the paraffin wax market can be attributed to increase in demand from the beauty industry. Mineral oils such as paraffin, which come in a variety of forms, are frequently used in face creams and body lotions. Paraffin is utilized in beauty products as it is a less expensive technique to make skin feel hydrated. When heated and applied to the skin or joint area, paraffin wax has a long history of treating a wide range of physical ailments, including enhancing blood flow, lowering pain, and treating arthritis. Additionally, an emollient, paraffin aids in softening the skin. By opening pores, the heated wax also aids in retaining moisture, leaving hands feeling softer, smoother, and better than before. Paraffin wax also becomes hard when it cools. Dead skin and grime are removed from the skin along with the wax, making the hands smoother.

Some Key Highlights From the Report

On 28 July 2021, Max&Bien, which is a Netherlands-based cheesemaker, debuted the world's first vegan cheese wheel coated in paraffin wax to emulate traditional-style Dutch cheeses. This vegan cheese comes in 1.2 kilograms wheels for cheese and delicatessen stores as well as 150 grams mini-wheels. The cheese itself is made from fermented wheat and comes in three flavors: cumin, truffle, and mustard.

The semi-refined wax segment is expected to register a rapid revenue growth rate over the forecast period. This is attributed to its increasing use in various applications owing to its benefits. Oil is present in semi-refined paraffin between 0.5% to 1.5%. Semi-refined paraffin wax is used in the production of PVC, laminate, candles, paint, pyrotechnics, and matches.

Additionally, it is utilized in pencils, crayons, carbon paper, floor polishes, automobiles, cable filling chemicals, electrical industries, tires, torches, and other rubber products.
