and Managing Partner*

Hattenbach v. Bruce & Merrilees Electric Co was settled with a $1.1M payout in January 2022. The victim, 62-year-old laborer Donald Hattenbach, was subject to an unsafe worksite and suffered several spinal fractures and impairments. The case was delayed for several years due to COVID-19. Proceedings started once attorneys Richard A. Godshall and Louis C. Ricciardi brought the case before the Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas.

Last April, Mulero v. Revere Crossing Management

Company, Inc's verdict earned the #114 spot on VerdictSearch's list. Godshall and Christine Clarke represented Tiffany Mulero, who was visiting an apartment complex owned by Revere Crossing Management when she fell down the stairs and broke her femur. Mulero won her case, and the jury in Delaware County, Pennsylvania, issued a verdict of $900,000 for the premises liability case.

"As we've learned, plaintiffs lawyers need to stay diligent, be patient and continue to litigate for maximum value on behalf of their clients, said Godshall. "We cannot allow the defendants and carriers specifically to bargain away value because of time."

Richard A. Godshall and Louis C. Ricciardi are licensed personal injury lawyers who have practiced law for over two decades. Together they work to serve dozens of communities in Pennsylvania in personal injury claims. Christine Clarke is an accomplished personal injury attorney who has successfully represented injured clients in state and federal jury trials. She has represented clients against some of the largest pharmaceutical companies and hospital systems in the country, and has won. Her record of verdicts exceeds $100 million.
