According to Sylvie Beljanski, CEO and Founder of The Beljanski Foundation, around 14 million people received cancer diagnoses in 2012 alone, while 8.2 million people succumbed to the illness. By the time they are 75 years old, one in five men and one in six women will have cancer. The disease will take the lives of one in eight males and one in twelve women. The Beljanski Foundation says breast cancer is the second most common cancer in women and the second leading cause of cancer deaths in women. The numbers are staggering, but help is available.

"For a different outcome, let's look at cancer differently. After all, doing the same thing again and again and hoping for a different result is the definition of insanity," adds The Beljanski Foundation.
