About the author:

Bill Maier, a life-long puzzle enthusiast, is based in Carrboro, North Carolina, where he resides with his wife, Annie. His passion for puzzles began during his formative years, as he grew up surrounded by these engaging brain teasers. Bill quickly discovered the intellectual challenges they presented and relished the opportunity to solve them. From that point forward, he exercised his mind with a variety of puzzle genres.

After earning a degree in Journalism from the University of Maryland, Bill embarked on a diverse professional journey. He initially pursued a career as a life insurance agent before finding his true calling in sales with Kraft Foods. Over the course of 28 years, Bill specialized in analytics, data sharing, and sales strategy, collaborating closely with the company's retail customers. He maintained a steadfast connection to puzzles throughout his career, faithfully completing word search games and word jumbles in the daily newspaper and puzzle books.
