Tutoring For Everyone

"We are excited to be expanding our suite of online services across the South," said The College King Founder and CEO, Ethan Putterman. "We are committed to providing the best possible online experience to high school graduates and college applicants, and we believe that this expansion will allow us to reach even more students who can benefit from our services."

The College King offers students comprehensive online and one-on-one individual tutoring together with help from Microsoft's ChatGPT and Google's Bard, as well as traditional teaching tools.

The expansion of The College King brings the addition of new staff members specializing in helping parents make informed decisions about their child's college. All tutors at The College King have a minimum of two years of professional related experience. The standards for hiring tutors are stringent, ensuring only the best teachers who have the experience and qualifications necessary to maximizing the benefits to students' learning and skill development. Critically, the College King works with students who have special needs to ensure college success isn't hindered or slowed by epiphenomena incidental to merit. Our firm's motto, "Education For All," is understood in the most expansive way beyond learning or financial constraints.

According to CEO, Ethan Putterman, "The College King is able to work directly with students online to ensure the best results under traditional time constraints. This includes the marked benefit of tutoring tailored to college assignments, projects and curriculum. The new services include college essay editing, college application review, and college admissions interview preparation using recent developments in AI technology. Our goal is to provide students and their families with the best possible college admissions experience modelled on rapid changes in education today. With the addition of new staff members, the launch of a new website, and the introduction of new services, we are confident that we can help more students and their families achieve their college admissions goals."
