essence of artistic expression.

"I am most excited about the product getting into crafters' hands. While the design process is always fun, the best and most gratifying part is seeing how they all play with the products because they all have amazing ideas and are doing such innovative things," shared Amy Tangerine, the creative force behind this remarkable collaboration.

"It was really fun for me to work with others since I largely work on my own these days. It felt like a very collaborative process where they were so open to my ideas and trusting of my design aesthetic. My favorite part was really the entire process and seeing the visions come to fruition."

Altenew's unwavering commitment to excellence shines through in this collaboration, ensuring that crafters are equipped with the finest tools to turn their visions into reality.
