The more I investigated the topic of gender transformation in today's youth, the more I saw that it had become a sensitive and even political subject. I wanted to understand the mechanisms behind it.”

The film explores the origin of transgenderism in youth and follows the journeys of several transgender young people and their families. The docudrama will reveal what actually happens to some youth who started the process to change their gender and the implications involved. The film tells the real life stories of several transgender youth and their experiences at various stages of their transition journeys, through live interviews and re-enactments.

Other experts interviewed and featured in the film include Dr. Michael Laidlaw, endocrinologist; Dr. Miriam Grossman, author and public speaker; Kali Fontanilla, founder, Exodus Institute/teacher; Christy Lozano, teacher/United States Air Force veteran; author/activist Walt Heyer, founder of Sexchangeregret.com, investigative writer Jennifer Bilek, and others.

CEO of Fenix Film, Tobias Elvhage is an award-winning producer and director with a passion for engaging and touching stories. He has studied at Berghs School of Communication and Stockholm Media School. His most recent productions range from the "haute cuisine" docuseries Taste of France, to historical and contemporary documentaries, to docuseries with re-enactments. His film Pure Life was voted Best Short Film at the LA Documentary Film Festival and was named winner at the European Cinematography Awards. The short is an official
