At the heart of this triumph lies the simplicity and effectiveness of the Leisure Leagues model. Chris Rowntree, the Franchise Manager, emphasises the straightforward nature of the process, stating: "It really is as easy as this, you hire a brand-new pitch, you offer a league people want to play in, but recruiting great match officials and working with the venue to promote the competition, and watch the money roll in." This straightforward approach has been key to attracting players and teams who seek a well-organised, competitive, and enjoyable football experience.
