

Irving Health Insurance Shows Major Changes Coming For Medicaid

Irving health insurance agent, says two major policy changes and ACA trends are impacting Congressional Budget Office mentions unfavorable projections for Medicaid over the next few years. The most significant takeaways suggest that Medicaid enrollment will decline significantly within the next two years, and the majority of individuals who lose Medicaid will eventually transition to employer coverage.

IRVING, TEXAS, USA, June 29, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Irving health insurance

Irving health insurance agent, says the Congressional Budget Office estimates that Medicaid enrollment could fall to fewer million people”

Rick Thornton

Medicaid enrollment reportedly reached millions of people last year and soared over the past years thanks to states stopping eligibility reviews of program enrollees. With that said, those reviews have restarted in several states, prompting the CBO to estimate millions of people will be removed from Medicaid because of this process. In turn, they expect enrollment to fall. This includes those individuals and families who have health insurance in Irving. The CBO also estimates that the people who had multiple sources of coverage might see a dramatic shift moving forward as they shift to an employer plan to offset the loss of Medicaid.

Rick Thornton, a Irving health insurance agent, said the CBO also expects an increase in the number of people without health insurance, though most of them will be eligible for subsidized coverage. Moreover, Affordable Care Act spending could soar over the next decade as it exacerbates annual federal deficits. Time will tell how accurate these estimates are, Thornton said, making it increasingly important for millions of Americans with or without Medicaid to pay attention to what's going on in today's healthcare news.
