Pentagon 2000SQL™ ADRS - Automatic Document Repository System

Add-On Module Provides Automatic Archival of System Generated Forms and Documents

NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, July 6, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Pentagon 2000SQL™ system allows users to generate a wide range of formatted documents. Commercial documents, quality compliance documents, and regulatory forms are all integrated into the system and may be printed, transmitted, or saved as a file. Invoices, Purchase Orders, and Authorized Release Certificates are just a few of the many forms available for use.

> For over 30 years PENTAGON 2000SQL set the industry standard in fully integrated ERP systems for the Aerospace, Defense, Electronics, Power Systems, MRO, and more."

For customers that require an automated and systematic method for saving and archiving their production documents, Pentagon 2000 Software offers the ADRS add-on module. This module allows system administrators to activate a server based automated archive procedure for the different document types. This procedure runs in the background at the time when selected document types are generated by users, and copies of the documents are saved in electronic format on a designated server or cloud storage drive.

Key benefits of the ADRS add-on module include seamless document capture and indexing, powerful search and retrieval, enhanced security and compliance, and intelligent document categorization utilizing metadata and powered by machine learning algorithms.
