About Lafayette Academy

Lafayette Academy is a K-12 classical school in St. Charles County, Missouri. It was founded in 2016 by Katy McKinney, a longtime educator, who was unhappy with the schooling options available for her three children. Researching options, she and her husband found classical education and wanted it for their children. Katy started Lafayette Academy (originally called Classical Academy de Lafayette), named to honor the French hero of the American Revolution. She licensed the K-12 Classical Curriculum from Hillsdale College, considered the best of its type. Since then, the school has grown to 80 students in all 13 grades.
