Contempo today announced a donation of $25,000 to the National First Ladies Library to help support the organization's mission: to preserve, promote and educate about the significant role of First Ladies throughout history.

"Throughout my career I have advocated, educated, mentored and supported female entrepreneurs, minority and women owned businesses, and young women aspiring toward design, entrepreneurship and those female business owners making a difference in the world. My heart leans toward women who are raising children on their own, divorced, widowed, never married, and working tirelessly towards their cause! My mother was a single mom and worked three jobs to support my sister and I so we could have a 'better' life."

The First Ladies of the U.S. have demonstrated strength, endurance, the ability to raise their children in the public eye and to support their husbands throughout their terms in office and to give back to our country and around the world with their philanthropic efforts. What greater way to say thank you to the National First Ladies Library than to support their work, efforts and future plans to share the history of the First Ladies through their exhibits, events and Library archives.

Patty Dowd Schmitz, President and CEO of the National First Ladies Library, said, "This very generous donation from Renée DeLuca Dolan on behalf of Contempo Communications comes at a very important time in the life of the National First Ladies Library, as we are in the process of moving forward with many plans to grow our organization and upgrade our exhibits, programming, and facilities in the next six to 12 months. These funds will go directly toward furthering the mission of the National First Ladies Library as we purchase the materials needed to support new and exciting collection acquisitions as well as educational and outreach programs for both adults and children. We cannot thank Ms. Dolan enough for her extraordinary generosity."
