The Aspire Tour founded by Eddie Willson and Andrew Cordle has become known as the #1 event for high net worth achievers and works to further inspire greatness in entrepreneurs as they aspire to more. The coming stop in Ontario, California will boast speakers such as Marcus Lemonis from CNBCs The Profit, Tim Storey known as the “comeback coach”, New York Times best selling author Rachel Hollis, and business mogul Eddie Wilson known for being the “King of Exits” in the business world.

I made a promise to myself... to take responsibility not just for myself but for those who sought to better the world by making their goals and dreams a reality. That is why I do what I do.”

James Barbour

In theme with inspiring greatness from within Barbour will speak on Unleashing Your Star Power and share his personal story of how anyone can overcome personal attacks or obstacles along their path and still succeed in any given profession and in life. As someone who has succeeded in one of the world's toughest industries, show business, he knows what it takes to navigate obstacles and personal attacks and teaches others how to harness and utilize that inner Star Power to achieve their goals at the highest level.

The day's events will also include exclusive networking opportunities where attendees will be able to speak with and learn from seasoned professionals such as Real Estate Expert and former SiriusXM Celebrity Jennifer J Hammond and Stephen Hall, the CEO of Robert Hall & Associates. A leading California accounting firm known for its impressive client list of over 2500 companies and 7000 families with their tax-related needs.

When asked why he chose to attend Aspire tour Barbour commented "One day in 1992 I made a promise to myself—a promise I would seek to help as much as I could, to remove vanity from the equation, and instead try, as best I could, to take responsibility not just for myself but for those who sought to better the world by making their goals and dreams a reality. That is why I do what I do."
