

Legendary games composer Nobuyoshi Sano boards Mobile FMV Game Clive is a Good Guy

Nobuyoshi Sano, composer of soundtracks for Tekken, Ridge Racer and Drakengard is the latest talent confirmed for upcoming mobile FMV game, Clive is a Good Guy.

MANCHESTER, UK, July 13, 2023

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Sano has written and produced the soundtrack to the game, which sees nine different versions of the titular Clive desperate to be released from the Mirror, a reality game show in which they're battling to escape.

Actor Neil Bell (Star Wars: Andor, Dune, Peaky Blinders) stars as Clive and the nine alternative personas of his character. The narrative-rich game will feature FMV (full motion vertical video), where players pitch Bell's multiple personalities against each other in a battle royale format.

"The thing about smartphone games in Japan is they're usually not very cool... " says Sano. " So when I saw the images for Clive is a Good Guy, which had a very artistic feeling to them, like video art: that left an impression on me. That's what I liked, and that's why I was so pleased to work on the game."

"We were more than delighted when Sano agreed to bring his musical talents to the game," says Indolent Games founder Krishna Stott, "Our team have admired his work for many years, and his unique style adds compelling edge to the gameplay."

Clive is a Good Guy will launch in January 2024, available through all good app stores. The first preview of Sano's soundtrack will be heard on the game's interactive trailer, "Live by the Spin" - launching mid-August 2023 on iOS and Android.
