Market Analysis and Insights: Global Vegetable Protein Market

Vegetable protein refers to the proteins extracted from plants like soybean, wheat, rice, pea, etc. The protein is an important component of human cells, consisting of monomers called amino acids. Vegetable protein is an alternative to animal protein and it can be absorbed easily. Protein is important to human body. Most people require about 0.8 grams of protein per kilogram of body weight, or about 58 grams of protein per day for a 160-pound adult.

The difference between the animal protein and vegetable protein lies in the amino acid content. Animal proteins are called complete proteins because they contain all essential amino acids. Animal protein has the amino acids that the body is unable to synthesize and must be included in the diet to allow for the proper conduct of protein synthesis. Vegetable protein composition does not provide all the amino acids. Unlike animal proteins, vegetable proteins are low in fat and produce nitrogenous waste, which is the waste products of proteins, which should be less harmful to avoid overloading the kidneys.

The global Vegetable Protein market size was valued at USD 14900 million in 2022 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD 30940 million by 2029 with a CAGR of 11.0 percentage during review period. The influence of COVID-19 and the Russia-Ukraine War were considered while estimating market sizes.

Global Vegetable Protein key players include Danisco(DuPont), ADM, CHS, Manildra Group, Gushen Biological, etc. Global top five manufacturers hold a share over 30 percentage.

China is the largest market, with a share over 35 percentage, followed by North America and Europe, both have a share about 50 percentage.
