Top videos this week include an introduction to the new Certified Concrete Pump Operator Program — a prestigious certification developed by the British Columbia Construction Safety Alliance. This competence-based certification marks concrete pump operators as Certified Concrete Pump Operators (CCPOs), demonstrating their dedication to competence, safety, and environmental awareness.

The second top video is courtesy of CBC News who recently got an inside-look at the progress being made on the massive renovations currently underway on the Centre Block on Parliament Hill in Ottawa. This is the largest, most complex project to rehabilitate a heritage building ever in Canada and is slated to be complete in 2032.
