Pop singer/songwriter, recording artist and philanthropist Kendra & the Bunnies (Kendra Muecke) recently released her new hit single "I'm a Showstopper - Remix (ft. AYO SK3TCH)," surpassing 25K streams within the first week and landing coveted spots on several Spotify Editorial playlists. You can listen to the track HERE!

AYO SK3TCH and I linked up through the Los Angeles music scene. We always wanted to work together. We're both Showstoppers...I think one of our biggest similarities is that we are both grinding 24/7.”

With entertaining lyrics like jump into the crowd and let them catch me, born to put a show on if you ask me, "I'm a Showstopper" embodies the magical presence Kendra brings to the stage. You can watch the official music video HERE!

"AYO SK3TCH and I linked up through the Los Angeles music scene," Kendra explains. "We met each other at some mansion parties and had mutual friends, so we kept in contact. He invited me to a couple events and he came to see my band play. We always wanted to work together - we were just waiting for the right song. We're both Showstoppers...I think one of our biggest similarities is that we are both working and grinding 24/7. It's all about the music and a successful future!"

In honor of her new single, Kendra has partnered with The Recording Academy's MusiCares via Spotify's Fan Support program. The non-profit organization offers preventive, emergency, and recovery programs to musicians in need. In June, the organization launched the Humans Of Hip Hop, providing resources tailored to hip-hop communities nationwide, focusing on eight cities: Atlanta, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles/Compton, New York, Oakland, Philadelphia, and Washington D.C. Back in March of this year, People Magazine published an exclusive interview with Kendra, detailing the artist's close encounter with a home intruder that stalked her and tried to assault her in the shower. This experience was the inspiration behind her song "Alive" on her EP "of all time."
