Engraved knife with Kanji characters by Syosaku-Japan

Engraving Japanese knives has become a fad for those who are indulged in the food industry. Chefs and home cooks are usually the ones who want their knives to be engraved. They ask their names to be engraved in Kanji or Katakana. Kanji is a system of Japanese writing with the use of Chinese characters. Foreign words are represented using Katakana. Other than for themselves, some customers also buy personalized knives as a gift.

Many people, prominent or not, showed interest in our knife engraving service when we started it. We decided to continue the service to cater to more customers.”
