When is Open Enrollment for 2024
Health Insurance Plans?

In Florida, open enrollment for health insurance in 2024 will run from November 1, 2023, to January 15, 2024. It is essential to note that enrollment dates may vary depending on the state and the specific health insurance marketplace. This extended period gives individuals ample time to explore and enroll in a suitable health insurance plan or change their existing coverage.

Open Enrollment can be a complex process, especially for those unfamiliar with its intricacies. Covering Central Florida provides valuable assistance and expert guidance throughout this period. Their Marketplace Navigators possess comprehensive knowledge of the Health Insurance Marketplace and can help individuals understand available coverage options, compare plans, and provide comprehensive support during enrollment.

Florida residents with questions or concerns about the upcoming enrollment season can schedule a free appointment with a Marketplace Navigator to help determine their best options when enrollment time comes. Key factors to consider include costs, coverage options, and the network of healthcare providers. Conducting research and comparing plans well before the open enrollment period empowers individuals to make informed decisions about their healthcare needs.

Remember, failing to enroll during the designated open enrollment period may result in waiting until the next enrollment period unless one qualifies for a Special Enrollment Period.

The Special Enrollment Period is a time outside the regular Open Enrollment period during which you can sign up for health insurance if you experience certain life events, such as losing existing coverage, getting married, having a baby, or moving to a new area. It's essential to check if you qualify for the SEP, as it can provide you with a valuable opportunity to secure the coverage you need for your and your family's healthcare needs without having to wait for the next Open Enrollment period. A Covering Central Florida marketplace navigator will be able to assist in determining if you're eligible to enroll at this time.
