

800 backpacks given away by Houston personal injury attorney Brian White

Giveaway benefitted Aldine Independent School District elementary boys and girls entering Kindergarten through 5th grade

HOUSTON, TX, UNITED STATES, August 1, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Houston attorney Brian White and his team hosted their second annual backpack giveaway on Saturday, benefitting Aldine Independent School District elementary boys and girls as they prepare to head back to school on August 10.

Students entering Kindergarten through 5th grade and their families were invited to Brian White's Operation Backpack Festival and given free backpacks filled with necessary school supplies including folders, pencils, notebooks, erasers, and water bottles. Each student was also encouraged to register for a free tablet that includes data.

Knowing that we can do something to ease the financial burden on parents who may not be able to purchase the supplies their kids need to do well in school is what drives us to give back.”

Houston personal injury attorney Brian White high fives a student at the backpack giveaway.

Over 91% of students in Aldine ISD come from economically-disadvantaged households. White was motivated by his own back-to-school experiences having been raised in a low-income household.

Nearly 1,200 people attended the event, which featured balloon entertainment, music, food, face painting and a giant dancing robot.

“This makes me happy because it saves me money and it's a lot of help for our budget,” Anais Prado, mother of a second grader, said.

The giveaway event has expanded from distributing 500 backpacks last year to 800 backpacks this year.

"I'm a father and most of my team are parents as well. Knowing that we can do something to ease the financial burden on parents who may not be able to purchase the supplies their kids need to do well in school is what drives us to give back," Brian White, personal injury attorney said.

The event was also sponsored by VFW Post 9187, Calavaras Texas, Risitas Party Rentals, MyConnect, Party Makers, SOS Entertainment and Dobie ROTC Cadets.

"Collaboration for the Aldine ISD community is really what made this an event that kids not only wanted to attend, but one that made an impact for hundreds of families," White said.
