

A TRIBUTE TO BREAST CANCER PREVENTION

Recelebrate "The Summer of '69" on 8/12/23

LAFAYETTE, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, August 4, 2023

/EINPresswire.com/ -- On Saturday, August 12, 2023, Notes4Hope presents a night of timeless, classic rock and roll at the historic Town Hall Theatre in Lafayette, CA.

Hey Hey Mama headlines the evening, fronted by top Bay Area female vocalists who will electrify the audience with their spectacular renditions from the Led Zeppelin catalog. Opening the night is Bay Area's premier Allman brothers tribute band, Freestone Peaches, blending rock, blues, country, and jazz, representing godfathers of Southern rock in all its wild, woolly glory.

Sandy Preto, President of Notes4Hope adds, "This is a night of comfort rock. And to know that the Allman Brothers and Led Zeppelin both released their debut albums in 1969 is truly connection perfection. Let's reCelebrate the Summer of '69 and rock together for a great cause!"

Proceeds from the night support breast cancer research and prevention initiatives including the production and distribution of the Notes4Hope Wellness And Recovery (WAR) Kits.

"This will be Hey Hey Mama's fourth time performing for Notes4Hope and it's because the band believes in the healing power of music, and because it's personal. Having lost the band's original lead singer to ovarian cancer, it heightens the importance of Notes4Hope's mission that focuses on advocacy and prevention to make real change. Everyone can work together to increase knowledge and understanding of what causes this disease and raise money to help stop cancer in its tracks." Explains Andrew Griffin, Hey Hey Mama drummer and front man of the band Felsen.

Patrons are welcome to arrive at 7:00 pm to grab seats and enjoy a no-host bar, featuring a Notes4Hope signature drink. The show kicks off at 8:00 with Freestone Peaches followed by Hey Hey Mama. This is sure to be an unforgettable night of music.

Live music for the fight against breast cancer
