Evolve was founded after owners April Hurley and Lindsey Meyer saw a growing need in their community for a place that kids with special needs could reach their true potential. The founders were inspired by families who have struggled for years to find a school that accepted and fostered an individualized-learning approach to each child's personal learning style.

"Evolve School of Learning sets forth high expectations for all our students and will offer a unique learning environment where every child will be able to grow, learn, and progress in a direction that best meets their needs," organizers said.
