

Scholarship for Online Cannabis Education Programs at the University of Nevada, Reno

Curaleaf and Green Flower Collaborating with University to Expand Local Cannabis Education Access with this Scholarship Opportunity

RENO, NV, UNITED STATES, August 8, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Green Flower and University of Nevada, Reno, one of the top schools in the United States, will offer a scholarship opportunity to local students for industry-leading online cannabis education certificate programs, with the support of Curaleaf, a leading international provider of consumer products in cannabis.

"We are thrilled that Curaleaf and University of Nevada, Reno are working together with us to offer online cannabis education programs to support the training and development of potential future employees in such an impactful way," said Max Simon, Green Flower CEO. "The knowledge and skills students gain through these programs positively impacts their careers in the months and years ahead."

With the support of Curaleaf, Green Flower is offering one scholarship for University of Nevada, Reno's online cannabis education programs. The recipient of the scholarship can enroll in any one of the four available cannabis programs at the university.

This is a full scholarship, and the student also will have an opportunity to connect with someone at the company who funded their scholarship to talk about their career goals and learn more about opportunities in their area of interest in the cannabis industry.

Applications for scholarships are open now through Aug. 11, 2023, with scholarship awardees being chosen the week of Aug. 14, 2023.

All applicants who do not receive a full scholarship will still be eligible for a $500 partial scholarship toward the cost of their chosen program. All scholarships must be claimed by Aug. 21, 2023.

Interested students can learn more about these scholarships and the application process here.
