Content Garrage offer businesses the best of both worlds: compelling content at practical prices. Their team of writers and editors comprises experienced language and subject matter experts. In addition to its affordable pricing, Content Garrage also offers several other benefits, including:

But, how does content writing fare in the era of AI? Well, writers have little to be afraid of. Recently, Content Garrage almost lost one of its premium clients because they wanted AI to churn out content for them. The account manager tried to make them reconsider their decision but they were adamant. The team jumped into action and requested the client to identify five topics that both teams would execute. AI spat out content in seconds while the agency's human writers took the entire day. The verdict? The clients liked and selected Content Garrage's writing for its uniqueness, versatility and overall output for ChatGPT's.

"Despite having advantages like reduced time consumption, AI is in its nascent stage. It lacks the finesse as well as emotional depth of a human, especially while writing content." Crisenta goes on to say, "Our client realised that our content for each topic was unique and engaging while AI's content was just bland and highly repetitive."
