Benchmark Gensuite employees will now have an opportunity to collaborate in person, enabling them to better serve their customers locally, globally, and across diverse operating profiles.

The new headquarters is a testament to Benchmark Gensuite's commitment to sustainability and community engagement. The company worked diligently with vendors to ensure that the move was as environmentally responsible as possible. By making sustainable choices throughout the relocation process, Benchmark Gensuite® showcases its dedication to environmental stewardship and corporate responsibility.

One of the key sustainability initiatives undertaken during the move was repurposing the stage from Benchmark Gensuite's previous Customer Conference into the office's new reception area. By contributing to those less fortunate, the company is fostering a spirit of goodwill and contributing to the betterment of the Greater Cincinnati/Northern Kentucky area.

“These generous donations are more examples of how Benchmark continues to embed in the local economy and community,” said Sherry Ratcliffe Taylor, President & CEO of Mason Deerfield Chamber. “We’re grateful they chose to stay in Deerfield with their recent relocation.”
