Ditch the paperwork and endless manual tasks. Modernize recruiting, onboarding, insurance and payment processes all in one easy-to-use platform.

This partnership marks a turning point for delivery and transportation gig workers, as it bridges the traditional benefits divide. Independent contractors on the Openforce platform will be able to utilize the Gig Worker Solutions program which provides unprecedented access to benefits previously reserved for W-2 employees of larger organizations, including Workers' Compensation, Group Health Insurance, retirement planning, and tax savings opportunities. A significant advantage of this program is that it also offers a route to verified W-2 income through the tax classification of an LLC as an S corp – a considerable milestone for gig economy workers to prove their independence.

"We're breaking down barriers for gig economy workers in the delivery and transportation sectors," explains Ryan Leggett, CEO of Gig Worker Solutions. "By teaming up with Openforce, we're disrupting the benefits landscape, extending our reach to the approximately 74 million gig workers across the nation, and bringing them onto a level playing field."

The innovative approach spearheaded by Gig Worker Solutions not only positively impacts gig workers but also brings substantial contractor retention value to companies in the delivery and transportation industries that rely on the adaptability and skills of this flexible workforce. By championing this often marginalized group, Gig Worker Solutions leads the charge toward a more inclusive and equitable work environment.

Wendy Greenland, CEO of Openforce, echoes this sentiment, "We are excited about our partnership with Gig Worker Solutions. Our combined efforts will streamline support for independent contractors in the delivery and transportation industries while helping businesses manage compliance risks and extend valuable member benefits."

Over 60,000 companies and contractors, predominantly in the delivery and transportation industries, depend on Openforce for fast, compliant onboarding, contracting, payment processing, risk controls, and other essential services. The partnership with Gig Worker Solutions enriches these benefits and services, shaping a new future for the gig economy.
