In adding Grade 3, Siena will further expand its nationally recognized programming and supportive educational model for bright students with language-based learning differences. “

Katie Douglas, Head of School

As new Head of School for Siena Silver Spring Katie Douglas notes, “Siena is committed to being a place that sees, values, and educates students with language-based learning differences. We are tremendously excited to extend our programming to reach 3rd graders in our community.”

With the addition of Grade 3, Siena will continue to refine its students’ elementary experience with necessary early intervention, lessons in self-advocacy, and multisensory reading techniques. Early diagnosis of dyslexia/language-based learning differences helps families identify their students’ specialized learning needs and begin adopting strategies for success.

Siena teachers’ expertise will further expand to our satellite campus. The elementary team will consist of our veteran experts as well as new hires to support the campus’s growth.

The admissions process has already started. Weekly school tours will be offered and applications are being received for the 2024-25 school year.
