Automotive F&I Solution Market Report Overview:

F&I means finance and insurance. An F&I manager at a dealership is the person who is responsible for obtaining and reviewing purchaser credit applications, pulling credit reports, budgeting customers from credit reports, and structuring loans or leases based on the underwriting guidelines of banks, finance companies and/or lease companies. F&I managers also explain the details of loans to their customers and collect down payments and copies of required documents from customers prior to the delivery of their purchased vehicle.

A finance & insurance manager is also responsible for informing the customer of other available product. Once the customer completes their choices of optional products, the F&I manager rolls the cost of those products into the loan, prints all loan/lease paperwork, DMV paperwork and obtains all necessary signatures before authorizing the delivery of the new vehicle. If you purchase a vehicle at a dealership, the salesperson may refer you to someone in the F&I or business office. Automotive F&I Solutions are typically grouped into protection packages and presented by the F&I Manager on an F&I Menu. These products range from vehicle service contracts, to appearance protections and even insurance.
