"Non-Profit Stories, Inspiring Tales from Silicon Valley" is excited to announce the release of its latest podcast episode featuring Prudhvi Dharmana, the CEO of ReWorld. The episode "Preserve the Planet, One Acre at a Time" delves into the innovative technology platform created by ReWorld to improve biodiversity hotspots worldwide.

maintain the forest for the long term.

Since its launch in November 2021, ReWorld has achieved significant milestones. The organization has garnered endorsements from renowned primatologist Jane Goodall and partnered with Proyecto TT, a non-profit in Colombia dedicated to protecting endangered species. Through their collaboration, ReWorld has raised $350,000 in six months to expand Proyecto TT's conservation efforts.

The impact of ReWorld.eco's work is measurable and impressive. The organization plans to plant over 400,000 trees, protect more than 600 species, sustain local communities of 125 people for five years, and remove over 150,000 tons of carbon dioxide from the atmosphere.

However, Reworld faces challenges, including a tight deadline to acquire the Santa Helena property in Colombia, which requires $1 million in funding. With only four months remaining, the organization seeks donations and grants to bridge the $300,000 gap.

"We are thrilled to have Prudhvi Dharmana, the visionary CEO of Reworld, as our guest on 'Non-Profit Stories,'" said the podcast host 'Sharad Gupta.' "His dedication to preserving our planet and innovative approach to funding non-profits is truly inspiring. We hope this episode will raise awareness and support for Reworld's important work."

The episode featuring Prudhvi Dharmana can be found on all major podcast platforms, including Apple Podcasts, Spotify, and Google Podcasts.
